Overview

Lori Kovach is a paralegal in Field Law's litigation department. She directly assists lawyers in all litigation matters including file analysis and progression of files, drafting documents and correspondence.

Lori has developed a deep-seated ability to oversee a litigation matter with the added benefit of having great communication skills. She enjoys working in litigation as it is predictable and challenging all at the same time. It keeps her mind active and she learns something new almost every day.

Lori began her career as a legal assistant in 1997 in our Edmonton office and transferred to Calgary in 1999. Lori has progressed from an insurance defence legal assistant to a paralegal and continues to expand her knowledge in litigation.

Value to Clients

"My goal is to manage and maintain the best service with my clients as well as our lawyers by overseeing litigation matters through effective communication and the knowledge I have gained over the years. The atmosphere at Field is welcoming and inclusive where we can work and learn together at a comfortable pace."

Outside the Office

Lori loves horseback riding and spends her spare time training with her beloved quarter horse, Moe. Travelling is also a passion for Lori, she has travelled frequently to Hawaii in the past and plans on expanding her travels to Europe one day.
