Overview

Products Liability is a unique area of law. Litigants in this area need lawyers who are current with the ever-changing legal landscape in this area and experienced in achieving efficient and sensible solutions to claims.

At Field Law, our Litigation Practice Group has extensive experience representing manufacturers, distributors, installers and related entities involved in product liability litigation. Field Law's cases relate to all manner of equipment and products, including allegedly defective industrial and construction equipment, farming equipment, building systems, motor vehicles, building materials and various consumer goods.

Field Law has achieved outstanding results for its clients in these matters. These clients include several major manufacturers, which we represent on an ongoing basis in litigation matters in Alberta. We also bring a depth of experience in assisting our clients to ensure that their contracts, product literature, practices and procedures are adequate to protect them from liability in this area.
