Overview

Field Law's Professional Regulatory lawyers have assisted clients with the development of new regulatory legislation and with the replacement of existing legislation including statutes, regulations, bylaws, codes and standards for the professions.

Our lawyers provide support to clients seeking to develop or replace existing regulatory legislation such as statutes and regulations. We can provide assistance with research, stakeholder consultations, policy papers, policy review and drafting instructions or legislative drafting.

Our lawyers can also assist regulatory organizations with the preparation of bylaw amendments and the enactment or revision of codes and standards for the profession in accordance with the governing legislation.

Contact us to discuss how we might assist your regulatory organization with legislative reform or development.
